Customer Problem Statements:

The following problem statements describe the learning challenges faced by students, written from the student's point of view.

PS-1 – Difficulty Understanding Complex Academic Concepts

I am	I am a student.
I'm trying to	I'm trying to understand difficult academic concepts and clear my doubts about them.
But	But I find that explanations are often complex or full of technical terms, and I do not always get a clear answer to my questions.
Because	Because the explanations I come across are not always written at a level that matches my current understanding of the subject.
Which makes me feel	Which makes me feel confused and less confident about the topic.

PS-2 – Difficulty Following a Structured Learning Progression

I am	I am a student.
I'm trying to	I'm trying to learn a subject step by step, moving from beginner to advanced concepts.
But	But I am not sure what I should learn first, what I should learn next, or which topics and resources suit my current stage.
Because	Because learning material is not always organized into a clear order that matches my level of knowledge.
Which makes me feel	Which makes me feel unsure about how to proceed with my learning.

PS-3 – Difficulty Efficiently Reviewing and Practicing Learning Content

I am	I am a student.
I'm trying to	I'm trying to revise what I have studied and check how well I understand it.
But	But reading lengthy material again takes a lot of time, and I do not always have suitable practice questions available when I need them.
Because	Because key points are spread across long content, and preparing practice questions for every topic requires extra effort.
Which makes me feel	Which makes me feel overwhelmed and uncertain about my level of understanding.
